

01-289

The FAA is the primary authority for regulations affecting aviation and in this case is the correct agency to determine the outcome of this issue. The FCC should defer to the FAA on issues of aviation safety.

121.5 MHz ELT must remain a viable, affordable option for pilots. Many aircraft still have 121.5 MHz ELT units, disallowing their continued use seems certain to cause unnecessary deaths & difficulties.